

A retired lawyer and former Editor-in-Chief of the Texas Review of Law & Politics, Tara Ross writes on the intersection of law, public policy and constitutional history and regularly appears on talk shows nationwide. The author of numerous books, her work has been published by many news outlets, including the National Law Journal, USA Today, the Washington Examiner, FoxNews.com, and The Washington Times.

Ross obtained her B.A. from Rice University and her J.D. from the University of Texas School of Law. She resides in Dallas with her husband and two children.

MEDIA

Click to watch:
Author Tara Ross explains both the Electoral College and why the National Popular Vote movement is not only wrong, but dangerous, via Prager U and an interview on Fox News.

QUOTABLE

- "If the Electoral College is eliminated, vast portions of the country will be ignored. Elections will be stolen. Recounts and challenges will proliferate, and the legal chaos will make Florida 2000 look like a picnic. The courts will determine who sits in the White House. America, as it was intended by our founders, will be lost. What will remain will be an even greater version of the angry, divided, ideological battlefield we live in today."

CREDENTIALS

- Seasoned guest with hundreds of appearances on national radio and television shows
- Published by major houses, she is the author of numerous books on U.S. history
- Featured in two of the most widely-viewed videos on the Electoral College and National Popular Vote movement to be found anywhere online (over 60 million views and linked below)
- Retired attorney and former Editor-in-Chief of the Texas Review of Law & Politics
- Has studied constitutional history and the Electoral College for 18 years
- B.A., Rice University; J.D., U of Texas School of Law

EXPERTISE

- Electoral College
- National Popular Vote
- U.S. Constitution
- Separation of church and state

TRAVEL, AVAILABILITY, SPEAKING

September 14	Austin, TX
September 20	New York, NY
October 3	Colorado
October 30	Colorado

Most often available M-F, from 8:15-3pm CT, via landline, cell or Skype. Other times per request.

Colonial Press, L.P. (October 14, 2019)

WHO IS THE AUDIENCE?

Educators, particularly homeschoolers.

Anyone interested in American history and particularly the role women have played.

The book is illustrated and aimed at elementary-aged school children, but also includes a sizable index, with detailed stories on each girl that could benefit an older/YA audience. The book is unique, not only in its topic, but in that it could resonate/be appropriate for multiple reading levels and ages.

OTHER BOOKS

Previously published books ... click to visit Amazon

- The Indispensable Electoral College: How the Founders' Plan Saves Our Country from Mob Rule
- Why We Need the Electoral College
- Enlightened Democracy: The Case for the Electoral College
- Under God: George Washington and the Question of Church and State (co-authored with Joseph C. Smith, Jr.)
- We Elect A President: The Story of our Electoral College

AN OVERVIEW OF THE NEW BOOK

American schoolchildren have long heard the stories of American Revolutionary War heroes—men such as George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, or Paul Revere. They may even know about the more prominent women of that era—ladies such as Martha Washington or Abigail Adams. But America's fight for liberty included many lesser-known individuals as well: Men and women who gave what they could, when they could. These sacrifices added up to something magnificent: A miraculous victory against the large and powerful British army. "She Fought, Too: Stories of Revolutionary War Heroines" tells age-appropriate stories of sixteen women and girls who contributed to the American war effort, behind the scenes. Meet the 15- and 16-year-old girls who made brave dashes in the middle of the night, carrying warnings of British activity. Or meet the slave who was also a poet: She earned George Washington's respect at a critical moment during the war. Other women were spies, fundraisers—or simply brave in the face of adversity. "She Fought, Too" reflects a fundamental truth: Every person, every effort, always makes a difference—especially when you are fighting for liberty.

WHY IT MATTERS

- It matters because history is important—particularly the history of early America, as many race to rewrite it to fit their sociopolitical ideologies
- There is a dearth of resources on this topic. We simply don't know enough about the tremendous contributions women made in the founding of our country
- Promotes patriotism, preserves American history and secures America's future through better education for children—particularly young girls
- Important for young girls to know that strong women exist on both sides of the political aisle and have always fought for freedom

"Elimination of the Electoral College restores us to the status quo that existed before the American Revolution. Our ancestors did not want to be taxed, without representation, by officials in a faraway land. Yet today, some propose to return to precisely that same situation. If the Electoral College is abolished, vast portions of the country will be ignored in presidential elections. Just as our ancestors lived at the whim of a faraway British Parliament, millions of modern-day Americans would live at the whim of voters in faraway states. It's precisely the type of bondage that our ancestors, including the women in the pages of this book, fought to be free from."

-- Tara Ross

For more information and/or availability, contact:

Jason Jones, Jones Literary

512-720-2996 / jason@jonesliterary.com